On behalf of the Board of Directors, it is my honor and privilege to invite you to attend the 89th annual Michigan Safety Conference! Over the years, I have always been immensely impressed by the incredible dedication of over 170 volunteers representing 14 different training divisions who assure the MSC provides over 120 quality educational safety programs to attendees. I want to thank all of the great organizations that support the MSC by encouraging and allowing their staff the opportunity to volunteer for the conference and to advance the cause of workplace safety in Michigan. The MSC also has an amazing exhibit hall with over 240 exhibitors featuring demonstrations and simulations as well as state-of-the-art safety products and services. One of the most valuable features of the MSC is the opportunity to meet, network, and learn from other safety professionals that come from a wide array of industries and safety disciplines in the state. All of this adds up to the fact that the Michigan Safety Conference is one of the premier non-profit safety conferences in the nation!

The theme of the 2019 conference is "Protect Your Employees: Check First."

Workplace safety is dependent upon identifying potential hazards and then eliminating those hazards if possible, controlling them through engineering controls if they cannot be completely eliminated, mitigating hazards through establishing process and procedures, and lastly assuring the use of personal protective equipment if the hazard cannot be eliminated or mitigated in any other way. In the world of healthcare, we use the concept of a "Time Out" to assure patient safety, to make sure we stop and "Check First" that the correct patient is having the correct surgery on the correct side, along with confirming other safety parameters and conditions. Any great safety program or well-developed organizational Culture of Safety not only identifies hazards and puts measures in place to address those hazards, but also makes sure the process includes everyone. Everyone must "Check First" to make sure all the safety parameters and measures are still in place and effective. Please, everyone, "Check First" before you start that job and "Check First" before you start that machine and begin that procedure. If we all "Check First", everyone goes home safe!

Be safe and I hope to see everyone at the conference!

3:00 pm – 4:00 pm — The Future of Wellness and Ergonomics/Questions and Answers

SUMMARY

Following the “Laws of Work” is a useful axiom when using ergonomics principles and developing an Ergonomics program that includes medical surveillance, engineering controls, and worker education and training. The data are in: Such programs work – but only work well if maintained. Worker wellness programs had a big splash in the 1990’s and came into their own in the new millennium. However, like ergonomics programs, it takes sustained effort to follow the moving dynamic of worker health. More important, in recent years, “shine has diminished from the apple” in terms of reduced healthcare premiums from workplaces that have wellness programs. Worker wellness takes a team approach that starts with the individual where he/she is helped by tools that can improve their physical and mental health. This presentation will bring together the elements of ergonomics and wellness programs and provide state of the “science” on where it is and where it is going.

National Speaker Bob Edwards, The H.O.P. Coach

Bob is a Human & Organizational Performance (HOP) practitioner. He works with all levels of an organization teaching HOP Fundamentals and training and coaching Learning Teams. Through the use of Learning Teams, companies and organizations are gaining a much deeper understanding of their operations and the complex nature of work. Bob leads organizations away from the blame model and deeper into collaboration and into building a culture of continuous improvement by learning from workers and implementing their ideas. This, in turn, is leading to more thorough, meaningful and sustainable improvements to issues in safety, quality and operations. Bob has a BS degree in mechanical engineering from Tennessee Technological University and Master's degree in Advanced Safety Engineering Management from the University of Alabama Birmingham. His work experience includes time as a maintenance man, soldier in the U.S. Army, a design engineer, maintenance and technical support leader, safety leader, and assistant plant manager.

SAFETY DISPLAYS AND SIMULATORS

SAVE A LIFE TOUR: ALCOHOL & DISTRACTED DRIVING SIMULATORS

Brought to you in part by Tom Bradburn.

Experience first-hand the devastating effects of drunk or distracted driving. The national "Save A Life Tour" has been developed to provide state-of-the-art, interactive driving simulation that truly shows participants the grim reality of destructive decisions. This program addresses the very real and often fatal consequences of poor choices that are made while driving under the influence or distracted.

CRANE SAFETY SIMULATOR

Brought to you by the Operating Engineers Local 324

Training simulators offer a cost effective, safe, and efficient way to orient entry level equipment operators in a risk-free environment while avoiding fuel cost, equipment damage, risk to personnel, and equipment downtime. Come experience the Simlog crane simulator! All offer highly detailed and realistic training scenarios ranging from basic to advanced skill levels.

FALL PROTECTION SAFETY SIMULATOR

Brought to you by the UAW Safety and Health Team

Careless or improper use of equipment can result in serious injury or death. Employers and employees should know how to use personal fall arrest systems, including manufacturers' recommendations. Employees should be trained in the selection of personal fall protection equipment.

3M SAFETY ROADSHOW

The Safety Roadshow is a fully equipped mobile training center to showcase 3M's industrial safety expertise and personal protective equipment.

Courses will be offered on the exhibit floor. Check the on-site program and mobile app for details.

SLIP TRIP AND FALL SIMULATOR

Brought to you by DTE Energy

A simulator that enables employees to safely "practice" slipping, tripping and falling?! Indeed! Slips, trips and falls are the number one cause of employee injury. This simulator works by "training your brain" to allow you to walk safely when confronted with slippery and distracting conditions.
